Your article still needs to be corrected in some grammar, word selection, and spelling errors. Your article also still needs to be revised, especially in maintaining consistency of writing. For example, your focus is on the collapse of the cultural value of the surau in West Sumatra. So this paper must begin with an explanation of the surau, and the cultural values of the surau. Likewise in the literature review section, without relating it to a particular situation.

Your research is carried out by means of a phenomenological, qualitative approach, but the researcher does not make observations, besides that he conducts Focus Group Discussions and interviews as a way to find meaning and understand, not to get data and facts.

Conclusions still need to be reconstructed to formulate a new theory, regarding the collapse of the cultural value of the surau in West Sumatra.

So, I suggest enrich your literature with books that match the focus of your study.

Abstract.

Please amend the abstract to include the intent or purpose of the paper, research methodology or methods, and main findings.

Literature Review (sections 2 & 3)

The contents of the literature review are more about providing the background for the collapse of the cultural value of the surau in West Sumatra. The author should insert his review into an empirical study of the subject matter, namely some local wisdom of Indonesian culture or in a wider scope.

Findings and Discussion

The presentation of the findings and discussion does not reflect the theoretical perspective used, namely the phenomenological approach and grounded theory. In such social actor-oriented research, authors should provide empirical evidence to demonstrate, support, and discuss "constructed realities" about the subject matter being studied. The author has used more literature to provide answers to research questions. Therefore, the authors are advised to rewrite part of the findings and discussions following the suggested theoretical perspective.

English and grammatical issues.

There are many English grammatical and spelling errors identified throughout the writing. It is suggested for the author to send the paper for a professional proof-reading before the re-submission.

Review the contents of this manuscript; i) language/sentence needs to be reworked (almost every page); ii) academic writing needs to be supported with adequate references iii) limited explanation of 'local wisdom' as it is one of the main discussion components of this manuscript, eg: roles and challenges; further explore the definition of 'local wisdom' and relate it to your main theme - 'local wisdom as an integration tradition' (discussed in depth).
